

Clara Barton

Clara Barton always did her best to help people. She got medical supplies to the army doctors during the Civil War. She nursed soldiers in the battlefield, no matter which side they were on. She spent hours looking for missing and hurt men.

After the war was over, she started the American National Red Cross. This is a group that helps people during floods, fires, and other disasters. Because of her efforts, the Red Cross has helped thousands of people during times of need.
