

Predicting at the Climax

Choose an exciting part of the story and predict what you think will happen next.

Predicting Using Early Clues

Look carefully at the title and the beginning of the story. What do you think the story will be about? Explain your predictions with ideas from your past reading and your own experiences.

Predicting Monitoring Predictions

Record your predictions as you are reading. Indicate whether your prediction was correct.

I predict ...	I was correct	I was not correct

Predicting Using Evidence

Record predictions that you make as you are reading. Beside each, include the evidence from the book that led you to your prediction. You may include a quote from the book (and page number), or describe a particular event.
